

NEW ORDINANCE TO REGULATE SALE OF MILK IS APPROVED

The City Council met Monday evening at the City Hall, Mayor Smith presiding. Councilman Moran was absent on account of illness.

The new milk ordinance was read and passed, which demands a better grade of milk in San Mateo county by a more rigid inspection.

A letter complaining of the trees adjoining the Denning residence was received, declaring this a menace in the neighborhood. The street committee was ordered to investigate.

A protest from T. W. Davis, of Miriam street, on his weed assessment was referred to the street committee.

A communication from Postmaster Todd, in answer to a request from the board for mail delivery in the newly annexed district of Colma, was received and stated that an inspector would go over the ground and report on this matter in the near future.

By request of the library committee, the board instructed the city librarian to issue books to residents of Daly City only in the future, this being a general library law in most cities, and will be enforced here to give better service to our local readers.

The Market Street Railway Company asked for a renewal of their permit to blast in the quarry, the request being accompanied by a bond. The matter was referred to the city clerk and city attorney to be checked over.

The California League of Municipalities asked the board to forward, through the local press, all new ordinances that may be drawn up in the future, this being a move to keep up with all the city laws of the cities in the state. The city clerk was instructed to comply with the request.

The matter of the store on the corner of Hanover and Oliver streets was laid over until some future date. This being a residential district and so near a business center, the board wants a true expression of all concerned, as it is the desire to keep this district purely residential.

Action on the Metropolitan District—1930 census matter—was laid over for advice from the city attorney.

HAS GREAT FAITH IN CITY'S FUTURE

One of the most consistent boosters for Daly City is Charles P. Gibbons, who has an insurance business and is the owner of considerable property in this section. In a recent talk with the publisher of the Daly City Record, Mr. Gibbons said:

"Few of us really understand or realize how rapidly Daly City is growing. Look back only five years and visualize the great expanse of vacant land that lay between the last outposts of San Francisco and the northern edge of Daly City.

"Where is it today. Get up on the hills east of Daly City and look towards San Francisco, and you will see block after block of new homes, and there is comparatively little vacant land intervening. This means that further growth of San Francisco must actually be pushed into Daly City.

"Already San Francisco builders and operators are laying their plans for building in Daly City.

"No longer is considered away out. In fact in the past year I have transferred the insurance of dozens of my clients from San Francisco to Daly City. Many of them old residents of San Francisco who have sold out their old homes and repurchased modern ones in Daly City.

What with the natural increase, the southerly growth of San Francisco, the greatly improved highway communication such as the Bernal Cut, the Alameda boulevard, the widening of Junipero Serra boulevard, and the extension of the Municipal Railroad, do not think I am over optimistic in believing that Daly City will double its population."

COMPANIONS OF FOREST INSTALL NEW OFFICERS

Last Wednesday evening Vista Grande Circle No. 253, Companions of Forest, held their installation of officers at Masonic Hall. The following were installed for the coming year: Christine Hume, Chief Companion; Lena Hutchings, Sub-Chief Companion; Margaret Parker, Financial Secretary; Anna Welch, Treasurer; Ellen Hart, Recording Secretary; Mary Behre, Flag Bearer; Helen Prescott, Marshal; Florence Bryant, Right Guide; May Dougherty, Left Guide; May Goodfriend, Inner Guard; Rose Newman, Outer Guard; Loretta Johnston, Organist. A class initiation was also held. Many visitors attended from the various circles.

DREDGERS AT WORK PREPARING FOR SPAN

The Dutton Dredging Company of San Francisco last Tuesday started two huge dredgers on the job of cutting a working channel through the mud flats opposite Little Coyote point to the main channel in the bay as part of the preliminary program for the construction of the San Mateo-Hayward bridge. Following in the wake of the dredgers, piledrivers, under the direction of the Raymond Construction Company, will sink a double line of test piles which will be used later as guides for the actual foundation of the seven mile span.

On the eastern side of the bay similar work was started Monday. An 8-foot channel is being cut from the shore line through the shell and mud formation, it being expected that approximately 100,000 yards of material will be removed. These channels, according to the engineers connected with the Raymond Construction Company, builders of the bridge, are necessary to allow pile drivers and other apparatus to be floated along the route of the bridge as far out as the mile wide channel that runs down the length of the bay about two miles from the San Mateo county shore.

During the past two weeks much activity has taken place on the premises of the big project, this being evenly divided between the water route and the approaches in San Mateo and Alameda counties.

MUSICAL PROGRAM AT THE M. E. CHURCH

The Daly City Methodist church announces a special Sunday evening service. Stereopticon views of India and its problems will be of interest to all, followed by a brief sermonette on "The Christ of the Indian Road."

We are also pleased to call the attention of the residents of Daly City to our special musical program for the evening service. Professor T. Eugene Goudey, pianist, will play for the entire service. Mrs. I. A. Bennett will sing the Gospel hymn made world famous by the Evangelist Sankey in his world tours, "Over the Line." Mrs. Bennett will be accompanied on the piano by Prof. Goudey.

Sunday morning the pastor's subject will be "Remember My Bonds." You will enjoy the morning service. Make an effort to be present.

Last Sunday the pastor had the privilege of baptizing seven children. The attendance at the morning service was somewhere near 115. Let us try to keep this up.

We extend our thanks and appreciation, as a church, to Prof. Goudey for his services last Sunday evening, and for his ability to enrich the service by his remarkable performance at the piano.

The Friendly Indians are going on a hike this Saturday to Muir Woods. All the members of the organization are requested to be present at 8 o'clock Saturday morning. Don't fail to be on time.

The Ladies' Aid Society will meet the first part of February to make preparations for the Washington birthday dinner to be held Wednesday evening, February 22. Put this date down in your book and enjoy the fellowship of this church.

Again we extend to the people of this community a most hearty welcome to attend the services of this church. We hope to see you present Sunday.

On Saturday evening, January 21, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas P. Moran entertained a party of thirty relatives and friends at their home, at 126 Acton street, in honor of their twenty-sixth wedding anniversary. TUESDAY LAST DAY TO SECURE LICENSE PLATES FOR AUTOS

Don't fail to make application at once for your automobile plates.

This message to Daly City motorists came to the Record today from Frank G. Snook, chief of the Division of Motor Vehicles at Sacramento. You will save yourself money and trouble by doing it.

And you will pay double if you wait too long.

After midnight of Tuesday, January 31, the legal time for renewing licenses expires.

After that date the law requires Chief Snook not only to charge you double for your plates, but to take your car away from you if you are driving with 1927 plates.

If you own an ordinary passenger car, that will mean you'll pay $6 instead of $3.

But if you own a commercial vehicle such as a truck, you will pay a great deal more. For some heavy types of truck you may pay as high as $86.

Don't wait! Put your money order or bank draft and your white certificate—after being sure that your present address is on the certificate—in an envelope and mail them to the Division of Motor Vehicles, Sacramento, California. Do this today!

GRACE CHURCH AND ITS PROGRAM

When the light is gone we are in the dark, and the music stops when the battery is run down.

The answer to an inquiring world today is to put into loving action the words and teaching of Jesus Christ, and this will never be by theological controversies, but by the loving ministrations of His children.

No man can saw wood with a hammer. If you want the church to succeed and help the weak and suffering, then don't knock and pound but lift and cheer and boost.

There is a time to pray, but sometimes the best prayer is made while running.

The C. E. Society of Grace Presbyterian church has taken some decided steps for helpfulness and progress. First they are going after the second prize in the coming convention, having already taken one.

Second, they have decided to help to build up the evening congregation by careful and systematic personal invitation. The contest is on and will close at Easter time. We ask that when you are solicited, give a cheerful assent.

Dr. Duncan will address the Sunday school on next Sabbath morning and all look forward to his coming with glad expectation.

Another feature is the special music promised for each Sabbath evening, as a committee composed of the members of the church will have charge on different evenings. Come and see what they bring.

Theme for next Sabbath evening, will be, Christ's Great Question: Will Ye Also Go Away? Let us answer some of these questions. Who went away? Why? Where, and what effect did it have? Come out and worship.

Yours in Christian service,

CHAS. H. GATCHELL, Minister.

AUTO ACCIDENT PROVES FATAL TO JOHN MARSHALL

John Marshall, of 349 Winchester street, passed away on Wednesday evening at St. Luke's hospital, death being due to injuries sustained when he was struck by an automobile last Saturday evening at Ninth and Mission streets.

Mr. Marshall was the father of Mrs. Alec Orr, Mrs. J. W. Lawler and John Marshall, and brother of James Marshall, of Vallejo, and Mrs. Donald Munro, of Burlingame. He was a native of Scotland, aged 83 years. Mr. Marshall was a member of Clan Fraser No. 78, O. S. C.

ASSISTANT CASHIER MISSING

Dean C. Beshlich, former assistant cashier of the Daly City Branch, Bank of Italy, is wanted on a summons sworn to through Judge Ellis C. Johnson's office. It is reported that Beshlich's accounts were short to the extent of some $1,600, which was fully covered by insurance and the bank will sustain no loss. There seems to have been no apparent reason for his misappropriation of the funds, and his friends are at a loss to understand his action. It is understood that his relatives have agreed to make good any loss to the insurance company. Beshlich had been with the Daly City Branch of the Bank of Italy for three years and during that time had a good reputation.

BANKER'S GIFT WILL AID AGRICULTURISTS OF HIS NATIVE STATE

The University of California is to receive a gift of $1,500,000, to be used for the benefit of the farmers, fruit growers, dairy and live stock men of the state, as the result of the generosity of A. P. Giannini, founder of the Bank of Italy and of the Bancitaly Corporation, who has declined to accept an offer of 5 per cent of the profits earned by Bancitaly Corporation as his compensation for the past year, and with which sum the board of directors of the corporation have agreed to establish a foundation at the University in honor of and as a compliment to Mr. Giannini.

Announcement of this striking act of public service was made early this week by James A. Bacigalupi on behalf of the executive committee of Bancitaly Corporation. The gift will be known as the Giannini Foundation of Agricultural Economics, and of the sum to be contributed $1,000,000 will go toward the establishment of the foundation itself, and $500,000 will be used to erect a building on the campus, dedicated to ways and means of relieving and improving the economic condition of farmers, dairy and live stock men and fruit growers in California.

In announcing the acceptance of the gift, and the creation of the foundation, Mr. Bacigalupi said that this action was in recognition of the support accorded the Bank of Italy, and Bancitaly Corporation, by the people of the state of California. "The organizations founded by Mr. Giannini have been exceedingly grateful for the public response they have enjoyed," said Mr. Bacigalupi, "and have had in contemplation for some time the establishment of an appropriate foundation which would in a measure evidence this gratitude. Agriculture is of course of primary importance to us, and the unfortunate circumstances in which many of our farmers and fruit growers find themselves—through no fault of their own—has suggested the desirability of attempting a scientific study of the problems with the hope of finding a suitable solution.

"Mr. Giannini, in honor of whom the gift is made, has exhibited the deepest interest in the welfare of our agriculturists, throughout his career, and it is for this reason that it is now proposed to provide an agency through which definite phases of the subject, such as farm management, marketing and limitation of production in various crops, may be analyzed, and the results given to the growers of the state. By virtue of the foundation which has been created, it will be possible to study the situation relating to the production and marketing of prunes, peaches, grapes and other crops, with a view to determining the course that should be pursued in effecting more satisfactory conditions. This represents a contribution of real value not only to those who are directly engaged in agricultural pursuits, but also to everyone residing in California, because agriculture constitutes our chief industry, and upon its welfare depends, in a large measure, the prosperity of all our people."

The creation of this agricultural foundation, as a compliment to Mr. Giannini, is particularly appropriate, as his boyhood was spent on a farm in the Santa Clara valley, and he was later engaged for twenty years in the wholesale fruit and produce business in San Francisco. His first financial experience was gained in extending credit to the growers of California while he was a partner in the firm of L. Scatena & Company, and it was to aid in the agricultural development of the state that he originally established the Bank of Italy.

DEATH CAR DRIVER FACES PROSECUTION

Eddie Miller, of San Francisco, the driver of the automobile in which Urban Hannigan was killed when it collided with a Peninsula Rapid Transit bus at Redwood City, January 15, faces serious charges as a result of a verdict returned by a coroner's jury last Tuesday.

The jury exonerated August Azevedo, driver of the bus, from all blame. It further found that Miller was driving his automobile on the wrong side of the road when the accident occurred. The verdict practically put responsibility for the fatal accident on Miller.

The members of the party in the Miller automobile had been drinking previous to the accident, according to testimony presented by one of the witnesses, who declared that he had detected alcoholic fumes on the breath of Miller, G. D. Gould and another members of the party when they were treated at the Community hospital.

Harry Regan, an official of the Peninsula Rapid Transit Company, who attended the inquest, said he did not know whether or not his company would prosecute Miller. He said the company's action would be governed by their attorneys.

Seth George and Vernon McIntyre, of Santa Clara, who were passengers in the bus, stated that the Miller automobile approached the bus on the wrong side of the road, and that Azevedo, the driver, turned to the left in order to avoid the crash.

WAR UPON SPEEDERS DECLARED AT MEET OF COUNTY OFFICIALS

At a special meeting of the San Mateo county board of supervisors at Redwood City, last Wednesday, war was declared on speeders and bootleggers.

The meeting was attended by Captain James Logan of the traffic squad, the traffic officers, sheriff, constables and justices of the peace, called at the insistence of Supervisor Thomas Hickey as an outgrowth of the two fatal bus accidents which occurred in the county since the first of the year.

Jail sentences for traffic violators instead of fines, concentration of effort in arresting all violators of traffic laws, and a general cleanup of all alleged resorts was decided upon as a result of an all morning session labeled as "a friendly conference for solving mutual problems."

Chairman John Poole of the board turned the meeting over to Supervisor Hickey at the outset, explaining that the meeting had been called at his request.

Setting forth the reasons for the meeting of the police and judicial departments of the county, Supervisor Hickey declared that the highway through San Mateo county had become one of the most dangerous in the state. He declared that "our people are no longer safe on the highways of this county, and the time has come when something must be done to protect them."

District Attorney Swart, Captain Logan, Traffic Officer Bond, Constable S. A. Landini and other officials discussed plans for a more rigid enforcement of the traffic laws, and a general clean up of the bootleggers, and it is believed that the good results of the meeting will be shown in the improved condition in the future.

SERIOUSLY INJURED BY RECKLESS DRIVER

Mr. and Mrs. J. Walsh and son, of 447 San Diego avenue, met with an automobile accident while driving out of Daly City to the Junipero Serra boulevard Wednesday evening of last week. Mr. Walsh was driving, and as the road is in a very poor condition at that point, was unable to go very fast. Just as he turned into the boulevard he sighted a machine which he claims was fully a block away, which came at a very high rate of speed and crashed in his car, although there was evidently plenty of room to pass. The driver, whose machine was badly wrecked, got out and finding both Mr. and Mrs. Walsh injured, offered to go for an ambulance, and departed, but did not return or send an ambulance, and the police are still looking for him. His machine is in the hands of the San Francisco police, as the accident occurred a few feet over the line in San Francisco.

Passing motorists helped Mr. Walsh lift the machine under which Mrs. Walsh had been pinned, and who did not regain consciousness until the next day. Upon the arrival of the police, Mr. and Mrs. Walsh were taken to St. Luke's hospital, where Mr. Walsh was found to have suffered a broken nose, three teeth were gone, and he was badly bruised all over his body. Mrs. Walsh, who was able to return home on Monday from the hospital, but is still confined to her bed, received a badly broken left arm, and a fracture of the left knee. Her face was so badly bruised that both eyes were closed, and she was bruised all over the body.

Although the little boy did not even receive a scratch, his cap was torn to shreds. The machine was a total wreck.

FUR TRAPPING ONE OF OLDEST INDUSTRIES

Fur trapping, one of the oldest industries in the United States, is holding its own in California. This statement is substantiated by the statistics just compiled by the Division of Fish and Game of the Department of Natural Resources, which show that a total of 287,202 skins netted the commercial trappers licensed by the division $743,211.52 during the three year period that ended February 28, 1927.

ing its own in California. This statement is substantiated by the statistics just compiled by the Division of Fish and Game of the Department of Natural Resources, which show that a total of 287,202 skins netted the commercial trappers licensed by the division $743,211.52 during the three year period that ended February 28, 1927.

The figures compiled by the research department of the division are estimates based on reports of the licensed trappers and do not include animals trapped by minors under 18 years of age, who are not required to secure a license, or those taken in predatory animal control.

Raccoon skins brought the most money, 39,891 of these pelts bringing the trappers $182,324.45. Skunk finished in second place, 86,273 skins netting $123,244.96. Third comes the much maligned coyote, with 26,183 hides furnishing a revenue of $118,742.41. Mink ranks fourth, the 11,337 skins being sold by the trappers for $67,487.10, while 26,577 gray fox pelts brought $50,608.34.

The most valuable fur trapped was that of the fisher, the skins of this animal averaging $34.75 each for the period, and the 130 that were caught brought the lucky trappers $4,612.34. Next to the fisher the red fox brought the largest price per skin, averaging $18.31, a total of $1,598.87 for the 86 that were trapped.

After the season on beaver had been closed for several years, it was opened in 1925, and 4,019 skins brought the trappers $49,698.95.

It is interesting to note that serious inroads were made on the beaver during this period as the next season's report shows only 692 were trapped and the skins brought $9,530. The average price of beaver pelts increased from $12.36 in 1925 to $12.90 in 1927.

During the three year period three wolverines were taken and the skins sold for $30. None of these animals have been trapped since 1925, according to the reports filed with the division.

CALIFORNIA GETS RED CROSS FLAG

Formal presentation of the Red Cross honor flag awarded to the state of California in recognition of its having the largest Red Cross membership in proportion to its population of any state in the Union, will be made at the state capitol at Sacramento today, Friday, January 27, at 2 p. m. Governor C. C. Young will accept the flag from Hon. Samuel Knight, chairman of the San Francisco Red Cross Chapter, after which it will be hung in the capitol for display during the year 1928.

The flag was awarded California at the Red cross annual convention in Washington, D. C., in October, 1927. Miss Mabel Boardman, secretary of the national organization, presented it at that time to Mr. W. H. Avery, executive manager of the San Francisco Chapter, who was acting as a delegate from California. The state's Red Cross membership is 238,353 persons, or 5.4 per cent of its population.

Each Red Cross Chapter in California has been invited to send a representative to Sacramento for the ceremonies today.

MOTORISTS GO OUT OF WAY TO USE BRIDGE

The theory that motorists will invariably go out of their way to use a bridge apparently is vindicated in the official travel figures just issued by the Dumbarton Bridge Corporation. The figures show that nearly one million automobile passengers crossed the span during the year 1927. The exact number was 947,288.

The heaviest month was October, when 35,462 motor cars used the structure. In July the total number of cars was 35,126, and in November, the "Big Game" month, the total was 35,151. These figures, the officials declare, far exceed expectations.

More than 400,000 passenger cars and trucks crossed the span during the year, the compilation of traffic also points out.

That the Dumbarton bridge has more than made good the convenience expectations of motorists, and that every factor points to its increased use, was the statement of H. N. Baker, secretary of the bridge company.

"The rather recent provisions for more and better transportation facilities, through the construction of bridges, has resulted in a tremendous impetus to motoring in California," said Baker. "The automobile's demands probably are responsible for the building of bridges which, a few years ago, were considered either impossible or too costly to warrant their construction."

"The fact that private enterprise is willing to invest its money in such heavy financial ventures is some proof as to the need for bridges. Their cost, one of the great objections, is being met by heavy traffic."

URGES ADDITIONAL FUNDS FOR FOREST HIGHWAYS

Additional Federal appropriations for the building of highways and trails within or adjacent to national forests in California are being sought by the California State Automobile Association.

The board of directors of the association has endorsed the proposal before Congress to increase the Federal appropriation for national forests from $7,500,000 to $12,500,000 a year in order to speed up road construction in these areas, according to announcement by John R. Graham of Merced, member of the Association Forestry Committee.

"California is improving state and county roads and highways in national parks much faster than the government is doing corresponding work in national forests," declared Graham. "Large areas of national forest lands are woefully neglected, the timber subject to the ravages of fire and dry rot, because of inaccessibility."

"From every viewpoint—recreational, agricultural, marketing of timber, prevention of fire loss, etc.—these areas are worthy of much more liberal consideration than they have received in the past."

"At the present rate of progress it will take nearly fifty years to complete the task. Within a fifth of that time we will have had our state highway system completed in its entirety and other roads improved to the extent that the comparison will be more pronounced than ever."

"We have very close to 10,000 miles of roads, or, perhaps I would be safer in saying so-called roads, in the national forests here in California alone. The necessity for their improvement is not only for the protection and benefit of the forest areas but is essential for our own commerce. The shape and location of these forest areas is generally of such a nature that they lie between our highly developed and populous regions, with a result that intercommunication between our people is made difficult with a lack of proper improvements."

OVERREACHED HIMSELF

It appears that in his straining for the sensational, William Randolph Hearst overreached himself in his recent publication of fake Mexican documents which purported to reveal a plot to bribe four United States Senators.

To publish such documents, which his own experts have since declared to be clumsy forgeries, is pretty generally considered an indefensible proceeding from any point of view. The publication of these documents temporarily placed Senators Borah, La Follette, Norris and Heflin under a cloud, which was happily dispelled as soon as the light was turned on. No responsible person believed for one moment that either of the Senators named was guilty of collusion with the Mexican government, but the action of the Hearst newspapers gave whispering gossippers a choice morsel for a few days, until the matter was cleared up.

Mr. Hearst claims to have bought these documents believing that they had been stolen from the files of the Mexican government. He published them even though he admitted that he had never believed that the four Senators were implicated in any way. And as a result the Hearst newspapers have come in for no end of unfavorable criticism from the press of the nation as a result of this action.

Another surplus seems to be that of stolen Mexican "secret documents."

Those new prohibition agents' finger prints may indicate whether bootleggers' money is likely to stick to their fingers.

Possibly we might have more great men in future if someone would build log cabins for them to be born in.

Why hundreds of thousands of women bank with Bank of Italy

Success appeals to women. They like to do business with unusually successful concerns. The Bank of Italy is heavily patronized by California women largely for the foregoing reasons... and also because it is a typically Californian institution... in origin, ideals, spirit and ownership.

CALIFORNIA NEWS BRIEFS

Operating nineteen fish hatcheries, twenty egg-collecting stations and three experimental hatcheries, the State division of fish and game raised 30,766,900 young trout and salmon for distribution in the streams of the State during 1927. It was announced last week by the State department of natural resources.

The section of the California motor vehicle law fixing January 31 as the last day on which motor owners may obtain new licenses at the regular prices means just what it says, Frank G. Snook, chief of the motor vehicle department, announces. Snook has advised heads of all branch offices that no excuses are to be accepted from autoists asking license after that date. If they have not obtained plates before January 31, Snook says, their only recourse is to pay the double fee and go on their way as arguments will gain them nothing and will be a waste of their own time as well as that of the State's workers.

California is far ahead of all other States in the number of auto camps, according to a survey. There are in this State approximately 1,000 camps.

The University of California has just been given two trust funds of $120,000 and $40,000 to provide for a professorship in law, and for scholarships for needy students. The gift was made by Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Flint of Los Angeles.

San Francisco representatives of the Red Cross will assemble at Sacramento January 27 to present to the State government a Red Cross honor flag awarded California for having the largest number of Red Cross members in America, in proportion to population. The flag will be received by Governor C. C. Young.

Application to construct a power project on the American River in El Dorado and Placer counties, was made last week at Washington, to the federal power commission by W. J. Prewelt, Auburn, California. The application calls for a dam 340 feet high across the north fork of the river, forming a reservoir with 600,000 acre feet capacity and a tunnel 5.4 miles long.

Work has commenced on the construction of the new $400,000 animal science building at the University of California College of Agriculture at Davis. The work is being done by the K. E. Parker Construction Company of San Francisco. It is to be of reinforced concrete with a stucco finish and three stories high. It is hoped to have the new structure completed by the end of the current fiscal year.

Bids on four new units at the Preston School of Industry and one at the Santa Barbara State Teachers' College, which will aggregate nearly $500,000, will be asked shortly by the State department of public works. Plans are now being completed by the division of architecture. The Preston projects include two new custodial buildings provided for by the 1925 legislature and a new school and a new hospital and receiving unit. These latter were provided for in the 1927 budget. The four buildings will cost in the neighborhood of $320,306. The Santa Barbara school unit will be a new home economics and science building costing approximately $165,000.

The highway commission last week announced it had set aside a sum of $2,500,000 from the estimated federal aid revenue for the biennium for convict work. Nine camps are tentatively proposed by the commission, three now being in active operation. Those camps now open are on the Trinity River lateral in northwestern Shasta County, on the Tahoe-Ukiah Highway in Lake County and the Yosemite Valley all-year road in Mariposa county. Other camps proposed for the current biennium are on the Red Bluff Susanville-Purdy lateral, the Redding-Alturas lateral, the Carmel-Santa Simeon Highway, the Kings River Highway, Ridge Route relocation in Los Angeles county and the Feather River lateral. This program would place between 800 and 1,200 convicts in the road camps.

An interesting comparison of the higher education in California with the cost of other government institutions was recently furnished by State Controller Ray L. Riley, in a statistical study of the increase in government cost. During a four year period ending in 1926, the percentage of increase in cost for the University of California was 16 per cent less than that for elementary schools, and 54 per cent less than for high schools. The University cost increased 15 per cent, the cost of penal institutions increased 37 per cent, administrative government costs increased 17 per cent, and regulatory government costs increased 36 per cent. Some organizations had smaller increases but did not show as great growth.

California's "gin marriage" law requiring three days' notification of the application for a marriage license had the effect, during the first six months of its enforcement, of lobbing off more than 2,000 weddings from the marriage total during 1927, as compared with 1926. The new law was effective over the last five months of 1927. Dan Cupid's "gin" aim claimed only 53,498 couples during the year, which is a rate of 12.6 per 1,000 of the State's population. This compares with a total of 56,664 marriages in 1926, a wedding rate of 13.7 per 1,000.

Oil operations reported to State Oil and Gas Supervisor R. D. Bush during the week ended January 14, 1928, show 22 new wells started, compared with 16 during the previous week. Of the 22 notices to drill filed, 2 were for wells in the Long Beach field, 1 each in the Inglewood, Dominguez and Potrero fields, 1 in Orange county, 4 in the fields of Ventura county, 1 in Alameda county, and 11 in the fields of Kern county. The total new wells this year is 38, compared with 64 at the same date last year.

California's mineral production in 1926 aggregated $450,330,856, an increase of $15,811,196 over 1925, Lloyd L. Root, state mineralogist reported recently in his annual report. There were fifty-six different mineral substances produced, exclusive of the stones grouped as gems. Also, each of the fifty-eight counties of the State were listed on the production list during the year.

The State government's semi-annual census of California highway traffic was in progress last week. T. H. Dennis of the maintenance bureau, State divisions of highways, announced that the census will involve a systematic count of all vehicles passing more than 700 selected points throughout the State road system.

Savings accounts under the Los Angeles School Savings Plan, at the end of its fifth year, December 31, 1927, totaled $1,031,695.58 and comprised 51,239 accounts, making an average of $20.13 per account, it was announced last week by A. Waller Morton, vice-president of the Merchants' National Trust and Savings Bank, and president of the Los Angeles Banks School Savings Ass'n.

Spouting steam and hot water 150 feet into the air in true "Old Faithful" fashion, Callistoga's newest geyser defied efforts to cap its natural energy last week. The geyser was opened on the property of the Callistoga Hot Springs Company during the drilling of a hot water well.

California experienced only 633 cases of typhoid fever during 1927, the smallest number in the state's history, it was announced last week by the State Department of Public Health.

The University of California has a total of 665,000 books in the Berkeley campus library, and more than 900,000 including the libraries of branches throughout the State.

Details of the general plans for the busts or statues of Father Junipero Serra and Thomas Starr King, California's contribution to the National Hall of Fame in the Capitol at Washington, will be decided on February 3 at a meeting of the State Commission, named for that purpose by Governor Young. At that time photographs and descriptions of the memorials placed by other States in the Capitol will be examined by the commission, and the general plan to be followed for the California memorials will be determined.

Believed to be the only high school in the United States teaching aeronautics in an intensive way and upon an accredited basis, the Galt Union High School, at Galt, Sacramento county, is soon to add more equipment to its $80,000 worth of airplanes, motors and material essential to flying instruction. Under the guidance of a "flying schoolmaster," William Rutherford, principal of the school, the town of Galt, as well as her school, is becoming "air-minded." Having pioneered the way, the school is now teaching aeronautics with the sympathetic aid of the government and private interests.

Rigid enforcement of the State's produce dealers' act enacted by the last legislature, is promised by G. H. Hecke, director of the State department of agriculture, following dissolution in San Francisco of the injunction in effect since the time the law was supposed to become operative last summer. Communication now are going forward to those classes as produce dealers and commission merchants notifying them of the requirements of the law and the need for immediate action on their part in posting bonds and obtaining licenses. The State during 1927 issued 262 licenses, although there were many beyond the operation of the law because they were parties to the suit on which the injunction was issued.

A three-hour daily airplane passenger service between San Francisco and Los Angeles will be inaugurated by Western Air Express, Inc., not later than May 1, according to announcement made last week by Harris M. Hanshue, president and general manager of the local air transport line. Huge passenger-cabin planes, now under construction at the American Aircraft Company's plant at Hasbrouck Heights, New Jersey, will be rushed to completion by April 1 in order to fulfill the contract. The machines will be of the Fokker trimotored cabin type, and will exceed in luxury of appointment, speed and safety, any airplane in use anywhere in the world, it is said. A buffet service and radio communication will be among the refinements.

Sensational new motor-car offerings will vie with motor trucks, motor buses and all kinds of motor accessories to attract the public interest at the forthcoming Pacific automobile show which opens at the San Francisco Civic Auditorium on January 28th. Never before in the history of the automobile industry have the manufacturers offered such sensational values as these 1928 models. Never before has the competition been so keen to win the favor of the public and to interest prospective buyers in the merchandise that is offered.

Pirate Gold Is Sought on Isle

Treasure Hunters Quit Panama for Cocos With Clews to Loot.

Ancon, Panama.—In quest of the reputed fabulous wealth which three pirates are said to have left behind them on Cocos island, a tiny volcanic island 300 miles southwest of Costa Rica, under whose flag it is governed, George Williams, former British naval lieutenant, has left here armed with charts and documents collected by the ex-governor of the island and a secret electrical gold-divining rod, with which he claims already to have located buried Indian treasures in Panama.

The documents which Williams possesses, and on which he says he is gambling all his proceeds from previous treasure hunts, were given to him by August Gessler, governor of Cocos island for 20 years, and were hitherto kept secret. Not only do these indicate the approximate locations of the iron-bound chests of gold and rare jewels ravaged by pirates from stately Spanish galleons scores of years ago, but, according to Williams, throw a whole new light on the history of the principal treasure, for which the island is famous. It is that which Captain Morgan took from the Peruvian capital, Callao, in 1820, when besieged by a Chilean force.

To Arrive in March.

Williams, who holds a special concession for treasure hunting in Panama, granted by President Chari, will stop at the Island of Chepillo on his present expedition, arriving at Cocos island at the end of the rainy season, in late March. Then brush may be burned from the sections where he will employ his "scientific gold finder."

According to the documents of Gessler, coupled with facts volunteered by Peruvian officials, Captain Morgan, a British adventurer in the Peruvian navy, did not set sail in the Mary Dear when the Peruvian government entrusted him with the wealth of Callao and the wives and daughters of officials, in 1820, as the Chileans threatened to sack the city. Instead, he commanded a small bark, manned by a crew of 20, which suffered such distress during a storm that Morgan decided to put in at the little island of Cocos and not sail for Spain, as he had been instructed. Four days were consumed in burying the treasure, the work carried on under the second mate, one William Thompson, an English adventurer like Morgan.

When the bark set sail for Peru again, however, with its cargo of fair ladies, Thompson gathered members of the crew in a mutinous uprising, in which Morgan was stabbed to death, that they might return to the island and make off with the treasure, variously estimated at $50,000 to $100,000. The account from here grows less official, dealing with Thompson's return to the treasure island, the murder of the women, a second mutiny of the crew, Thompson's capture by Peruvian soldiers and escape and his fruitless efforts to return again to the island. His secret of the treasure's location was passed on to a certain Keating, then to a Fitzgerald and a Captain Bogue.

Ex-Governor Gives Clews.

Gessler himself while governor spent years in searching for the rumored wealth. Before her death recently, in New York, his wife extracted a promise from him that he would never return to the island of thwarted quest for gold and tales of violent death. He has passed on his knowledge of buried treasure on Cocos island to Williams, according to the latter, to whom in a letter he writes of his own search: "I put all the clews together which I had collected. I set out to test my information, and within 100 yards of where I expected to find something I came across the hollow stump of a tree, yielding a rusty iron bar, a broken knife blade and 23 coins dated between 1773 and 1799. Near this place lies the Peruvian treasure."

Only a part of his search will be devoted to this treasure, however, Williams says, for Gessler has given him other information, documents and charts which tell of more buried pirate hoards on the little island, the value of which has not even been guessed at. In the same secret letter to Williams, Gessler writes as follows of the pirate's loot which "Old Mack" like-wise buried on the island:

"I was a sailor adventurer on the South seas when I first heard of Cocos island. I ran away from a luxurious home on the Rhine. It was on the Sandwich Islands that I met an old ex-plate called by the beach combers 'Old Mack,' who told weird tales of his life under the black flag. While he was dying he told his daughter of a treasure he buried on Cocos island, hoisting it to a cliff running like a wall to the beach and depositing it in a natural crevice in the ground. The daughter copied full instructions of where the treasure could be found and told them to her husband."

"With him I went into partnership to search for this treasure and we finally reached the island in a small boat with three peons from Punta Arenas in Costa Rica. We found a tunnel under the rock as described by 'Old Mack,' rusty eyeballs used by the pirates with their hoisting tackles, and in the thickets above the cliff, rusty pots, broken swords, a knife and the breastbone of a man. But marks of a natural crevice were obliterated by time and I knew that a large area would have to be explored. While camping, 'Old Mack's' son-in-law was stricken with fever and died. I returned to Costa Rica, obtaining permission to hoist that flag on the island, still unclaimed, and was appointed as governor."

"I pursued my search for the treas-

Farmer Asserts He Has Perfect Potato

Kildeer, N. D.—A potato that is said to be "bugless," and apparently resistant to scab and other common diseases, has been developed by A. J. Reems of Kildeer.

Four years ago Reems found an odd hill of white-skinned potatoes in a Red Triumph planting. He fostered the strain by special cultivation and now claims a virtually perfect potato.

Except for one earload that was shipped this year to a South Dakota seed house for double the market price, the entire production of the unusual tuber is stored on two farms at Kildeer.

The strain matures two weeks earlier than other Triumph varieties, but requires no more moisture than any of the common types of potato.

ure of the Saracen, that being the ship of 'Old Mack' when I returned. Exploring a cave I discovered a natural passageway to a great interior chamber, 100 feet across, strewn with rusted cutlasses, and pieces of wood that had once been treasure chests. Over the floor were scattered many coins of gold and pieces of jewelry. It is likely that the whole treasure is buried somewhere in the floor."

Other documents and information in Williams' possession relate to the treasure of the buccaneer, Bonito, who is the third swashbuckler rumored to have used the little island as a bank when his loot became too heavy for convenience in sailing.

Some Gold Uncovered.

Search for the first and last of these treasures already has occupied the attention of numerous expeditions. Certain of these are said to have uncovered small deposits of gold doubloons and the like. Williams confidently expects to make a really large find. A similar expedition to Cocos island, which Williams organized last year, fell through and English papers accused him of fraud. In Panama, however, he has made important finds of Indian gold ornaments and armor in excavated tombs as well as a considerable treasure of gold coins and precious stones, supposed to have been hastily buried in old Panama City when Morgan swooped down upon it. A golden altar from this treasure, valued at $2,000, is on exhibition in Panama City. The extended position of the legs of the figure of Christ on this altar indicates the workmanship precedes 1300, as since that date the figure of Christ has uniformly been depicted with crossed legs.

Medal Lost 20 Years Ago Found on Farm

Quincy, Ill.—Twenty years have passed since Homer B. Dines, Chicago lawyer, lost a medal, which he won in an oratorical contest, while a guest on the Otis Duncan farm near Quincy. But the medal again came in possession of its rightful owner. Recently Mr. Duncan was hunting quail, and while searching for a wounded bird saw a glint of gold. Picking it up he discovered it to be the long lost medal.

SEARCH OCEAN LINERS IN NEW DRIVE ON SMUGGLERS

Government Officials Are Determined to Wipe Out Traffic in Narcotics.

Los Angeles, Calif.—Determined to wipe out the smuggling of narcotics into the United States via Oriental steamers, the government has just inaugurated a new system of checking on all shipments on such steamers, as the result of a conference between Collector of Customs Hamilton of San Francisco and Collector of Customs Schwabe of Los Angeles.

It was stated by the officials that one large loophole in the fight to keep narcotics out of California is in the activities of employees of large Pacific liners. Most of the opium, morphine and cocaine that comes to this country is said to have been smuggled in this manner.

With the approval of the government, Collector Hamilton now has in service at San Francisco seven expert searchers, who regularly are placed on Pacific liners. It is planned to have a larger crew of such searchers and to increase the force of Collector Schwabe so that a similar system may be satiated at Los Angeles harbor.

Customs officials, limited by the number of men to conduct such a search, have been handicapped. The usual plan for the smugglers, it is said, is for some one employed on the liners to drop off a large number of tins of narcotics, carefully tied together and buoyed by large cork sacks, at some designated place along the coast. This usually is done at a time when the tide will carry the long string of tins shoreward so that watching smugglers can catch them as they drift in.

A PETTY BUSINESS

It has been said that Uncle Sam is a poor business man. Most of his excursions into business of magnitude have resulted rather disastrously for the taxpayers who have to pay his losses.

Possibly that is why he engages in the business of printing envelopes in competition with private citizens. In such petty business he appears to shine. He might be a great success in running a chain of government-operated peanut stands. There would be about as much excuse for one activity as the other.

Private printers must pay taxes, licenses and other overhead charges, besides they must make some profit if they are to continue to exist. But Uncle Sam has none of these conditions to meet. The money lost by the Post Office Department is made up by further taxation, drawn in part from the very citizens who are injured by this uncalled-for competition.

Bills are before Congress whose object is to end this unfair and utterly indefensible practice of printing envelopes by the government. The small town printers who are greatly handicapped by the practice—mostly publishers of community newspapers—are asking for relief from this injustice.

Other business men should rally to the support of the printers in their eminently just demand that this rotten practice be stopped.

No Senator or Congressman possessed of even an elementary sense of fair dealing should fail to see why it should be stopped, or fail to vote to stop it.

An excellent opportunity for the enrichment of the language was overlooked by not including Messrs. Dawes, Bleasoe and Reed of Missouri in that Mexican plot.

TRIUMPHS OF RADIO

While the ultimate possibilities of radio, both for entertainment and commercial use, have not yet been grasped by the human mind, the advances in the art made during 1927 have been almost startling.

Through the Federal Radio Act, a long step was taken toward the equitable control of the air, while the improvement of broadcasting systems and programs has made the individual receiving set a source of increased satisfaction.

Receivers which operate directly off the home lighting circuit without the use of batteries have been fully developed and are now within the reach of persons of moderate means. A further exercise of control for the prevention of interference between stations is promised during the present year, which will undoubtedly add to the popularity of the radio.

At present about the only fly in the radio ointment is the old enemy—static. But annoying as it is at times, it does not prevent one's getting a lot of enjoyment out of the excellent programs provided. And even static may possibly be conquered some day.

MALARIA VS. PARESIS

If we could only discover it, there may be, as Jacques declared in "As You Like It," some "good in everything." It is unquestionably true that much that is good and useful has been found in the most unexpected quarters. For example, the malaria germ.

For quite a while experiments have been made which have tended to show that the germs of malaria have the property of controlling the progress of paresis, or partial paralysis.

A report of cases made a few days ago by Dr. Edward Gillispie, assistant superintendent of the state hospital at Binghamton, N. Y., states that more than one-third of the patients suffering from paresis at that institution during recent months have been so improved by the injection of malaria germs into their blood that they have been permitted to go to their homes.

Dr. Gillispie does not claim that this treatment can be relied upon as a cure, but among the cases treated all but about one-third have shown a favorable response. This is a most hopeful indication of progress toward control of one of the most dreaded diseases which menaces mankind.

The idea of setting one disease to fight another is fascinating and may have great possibilities as applied to therapeutics of the future.

OFFENSIVE SIGNS

In keeping with what is becoming a world-wide protest against offensive signs and billboards, the authorities of Paris have decreed that no signs shall be displayed on the famous thoroughfare, the Champs Elysees, which advertise any goods not actually sold on the premises.

Recently protests were heard in Spain concerning objectionable American billboards which mar the landscape. In this country the women's clubs and other organizations are waging a campaign against the billboard nuisance.

By the erection of signboards which spoil the natural scenery along the highways, and by their encroachments in residential sections of our cities, the billboard people have brought upon themselves the just resentment of that section of the public which has regard for appearances.

When we become more civilized the billboard will go the way of the town crier. As an advertising medium it is an anachronism already.

A LESSON FOR MOBS

How unjust it is to judge of guilt on the strength of superficial circumstantial evidence was illustrated a few weeks ago by the case of a 11-year-old boy murdered in Arkansas, presumably for a small amount of money he carried.

It was known that shortly before his death he had been in company with a one-eyed negro boy, who also was missing. Search for the negro was begun, with open threats of summary vengeance. After several days the negro boy was found not far from where the white boy was killed. But he was also dead, with indications that he gave his life in common battle with the white lad's murderers.

Now suppose that the two boys had separated before the white boy was killed. And suppose the mob had captured the negro lad, whose sightless eye would have identified him beyond question. There would have been just one more lynching of a negro, despite his pleadings and protestations of innocence.

This should be a lesson for any who may be tempted to take part in mob murder.

PROPHETIC BUNK

Morons of the class which in all seriousness consult fortune tellers are always interested also in the annual prophecies of a number of alleged seers, such as Belle Bart, Mme. Fraya and those freaks who at intervals predict the end of the world.

Every year the Pathfinder checks up to find out the batting averages of these prophets, and generally finds them to be zero. For example, Belle Bart predicted that during 1927 Edison would die suddenly, that Mussolini would lose his power, that the Volstead act would be modified, that Ford would have to combine with another manufacturer, and that the Prince of Wales would get married.

Other predictions made by various prophets which failed of fulfillment last year included the destruction of New York and Atlanta, trouble with Canada, and the return of long skirts.

Mme. Fraya was the only seeress to score even a fraction of a point. She prophesied that more marriages would be dissolved in 1927 than in any previous year, and so there were. But any of us could have foretold that.

RISE OF A BARMAID

Some years ago Rachele Agostini was a comely barmaid in a modest Italian tavern. She had also been a worker in the fields, a shepherdess and a household servant.

While a barmaid, her employer warned her against her attachment for his son, saying: "Do not let yourself think of him. It would be better that you should die. Married to him you would have no happiness."

But Rachele had a will of her own, and despite the warning of her prospective father-in-law, she married his son. It has turned out that she might have done worse.

Last month she secured the release of 300 anti-Fascist exiles through her influence with the dictator, Benito Mussolini. And how did this former barmaid obtain such sway over the master of all Italy?

One explanation is that she has tact and good judgment. Another is that she is his wife.

If some Naval critics had their way we should have only companionate Secretaries of the Navy.

How those old Puritans would have enjoyed the title of the current song hit, "My Blue Heaven."

STORY FROM THE START

Handsome, fastidious and wealthy—young St. Croix Creighton awaits his sweetheart at their trysting place. She is late, this ordinary little Pennsylvania Dutch girl, Meely Schwenckton. Despite her seeming innocence and ignorance, she succeeds in keeping him at a distance, to his chagrin. Meely, in the Schwenckton home, where she is boarding, is altogether unlike the girl who meets St. Croix clandestinely. She is the teacher in the neighborhood school, of which Marvin Creighton, St. Croix's brother, is superintendent. Meely learns that Marvin was to have married his cousin, a titled English lady, but, believing she was attracted by the Creighton wealth, had refused the alliance. It is the rumor that St. Croix is to take Marvin's place and marry the English girl. St. Croix's jealousy is aroused by Meely's report of an aged suitor for her hand. The girl cleverly decoys him into admitting he has no intention of marrying her. Marvin visits school in his official capacity as superintendent and discovers how, shockingly, little Meely knows about school teaching. Mr. Schwenckton, coming home from town, picks up a stranger, and finding his watch gone, demands the stranger get out and turn over his watch.

"I've been held up on the road and robbed!" he announced, his voice weak with fatigue. "May I use your phone to report to the police?"

A stunned silence on the part of the four occupants of the kitchen met this statement and request—Meely staring with wide-open eyes, her hand pressed to her fast-beating heart; Nettie's face going first red, then pale; Mr. Schwenckton trembling and pallid; Susie unmoved.

But it was Susie who broke their stupid silence. "So you see, Sam, he ain't still runnin'!"

A little hysterical squeal of laughter from Meely brought the young man's eyes around to where she stood by the table—clad in a kimono, her hair down her back in a braid. She was glad she was not dressed normally, for in her tailored school suit with her hair done up around her head, she was so transformed from the country bumpkin of her voluble frock trimmed with artificial flowers and streaming ribbons that the extreme contrast would have betrayed her hopelessly as a masquerader.

For the man leaning exhausted against the kitchen door was St. Croix Creighton.

"How did you get here so soon?" quavered Mr. Schwenckton, too absorbed in his own quandary to see the flash of startled recognition with which his visitor's eyes met Meely's. She had succeeded, at an instant's notice, in assuming the look of bovine dullness which had so effectually disguised her ever since she had known him.

"Am I—is this Sam Schwenckton's farm?" exclaimed the amazed young man. "I'd no idea where I was, the road's so pitch dark! I've been groping my way for a half hour to find a house where I could telephone. That," pointing to the lamp, "was the first light I saw in five miles!"

"No yet five—not more'n two," Mr. Schwenckton's shaking voice corrected him.

"How do you know? Is this Mr. Schwenckton?" asked St. Croix, for the farmer, without his coat and hat and necktie, did not suggest to him his automobile companion of an hour ago.

"It is," Mr. Schwenckton heavily admitted. "And you, now that I see you in the light, I recognize as the younger Mr. Creighton! Yi, yi, yi, yi!"

"Yes, I am in a mess!" responded St. Croix, interpreting the farmer's exclamation as an expression of sympathy for his plight. "May I use your—"

"If it's only your watch you want, it ain't no need to phone. Here it is!" Mr. Schwenckton, with shamed, averted face, held it out to his owner.

St. Croix, amazed, took it. "You caught the thief? But how? Do tell me! I never was more taken in! He seemed the most harmless, kindly old simpleton—"

This time it was Nettie who gave a little hysterical squeal which brought the young man's eyes, for an instant, to her rosy, eager face.

"Meely!" Mr. Schwenckton appealed, "you tell him how it was! Me, I couldn't get the words together for to explain such a bewilderment!"

Meely was appalled. The Schwencktons were accustomed to hear her speak good English; St. Croix had of course never heard her talk anything but the Pennsylvania Dutch dialect!

"Nettie," she murmured, "you tell him!"

Nettie, shy, but all too willing to hold the young god's attention upon herself, eagerly assumed the task of explaining her poor father's unfortunate mistake—and before she was half through her narrative, they were all laughing except Susie; and even she was feebly smiling.

"What gets me puzzled," said Mr. Schwenckton, amazedly, "is that me and you, Mr. Creighton, neighbors since you was born a'ready, though five miles apart and not seeing each other often (I ain't really laid eyes on you since you was a college boy, except to pass each other in our cars)—but that us we could ride together near eight miles yet and not recognize each other—"

"I'd have known you in your farm clothes, I suppose, but—"

He did not explain how unnatural and unlike himself the farmer looked to him in his "store suit" with a collar and necktie on.

"I've Been Held Up on the Road and Robbed," He Announced, His Voice Weak With Fatigue.

"It's a good thing we're neighbors that know each other or this here thing mightn't look so funny, but very serious!" Mr. Schwenckton gravely opined.

"I didn't know," St. Croix said suddenly, when Mr. Schwenckton's abject apologies had been accepted, "that you had three daughters, Mr. Schwenckton; I thought you had only two."

"You thought right—I got only two," "Oh," St. Croix nodded, "then this young lady isn't your daughter?" His nod indicated Nettie, but as she and Meely were standing together, Mr. Schwenckton misunderstood him.

"No, she's only a distant cousin, come to school to teach here."

"Teach? Why, she looks too young! You can't tell, these days, can you, how old girls are?"

Meely realized that his look of amazement, almost of consternation, was not at all for Nettie's youth as a teacher, but for the awful English with which the children of the district must be instructed!

Nettie was delighted that no one but herself, as she supposed, perceived his mistake, for it was wonderful to have Mr. St. Croix Creighton think her old enough and "smart" enough to be a school teacher! Thankful she was indeed that Meely didn't speak in and claim the honor.

It was obvious to Meely that St. Croix was even more concerned than she was that neither he nor she should by look or word reveal to this family the relation in which they stood.

Mr. Schwenckton offered, now, to get out his car again and take Mr. Creighton home, but the young man protested that if they would allow him to telephone home, one of the Beechlands chauffeurs would be here in a short time with a runabout.

While he was telephoning, Mr. Schwenckton ordered Nettie to make some strong hot coffee and get out some doughnuts and pie.

But what, Meely wondered, would St. Croix think of the teacher's being asked to do this instead of the daughter of the house? She considered swiftly what would be her best course to avert suspicion on both sides. To get across the kitchen to the stairway and run up to her room? Mr. Schwenckton would be bound to stop her and insist that she stay and have coffee and doughnuts with them, and if he spoke to her at all, St. Croix would notice how differently he addressed her and Nettie. To remain here, however, was more certain to invite exposure. And yet, she was afraid to go away for fear of what might come out in her absence.

Nettie, as she bustled about making coffee and setting out cups and saucers, saw, with keen chagrin, how Mr. Creighton's eyes kept turning toward Meely and never in her direction. And the expression on his face—furtive, hungry, infatuated! Was this, Nettie wondered, a case of love on sight? She was greatly puzzled, for in her opinion Meely "looked a mess" in that sloppy kimono and with a "plait" down her back.

As Mr. Creighton hung up the receiver, there was a quick movement in the room—Meely making for the stairs.

"Ach, Meely—" began Mr. Schwenckton.

"Good night," she interrupted, rushing up the steps before he could stop her—but not before she caught in St. Croix's eyes the evidence of the conflict in his mind—a passionate protest against her presence, mingled with a fear of her presence.

Upstairs in her own room, while she prepared for bed, she had the exciting suspense of wondering whether they were talking about her; whether St. Croix had noticed the kimono she had on, a Japanese embroidered silk thing that a county school teacher would hardly own if she were what she should be! Yes, this kimono could be a "give-away."

"Well, when this sort of thing could happen it was evident that she could not much longer keep up her face. She must bring things to a climax as soon as possible; beguile St. Croix to lay his cards on the table; force his hand for a show-down.

The sound of the cabinet organ in the parlor below her bedroom, and Nettie's shrill voice singing, interrupted her thoughts. Nettie was invariably called upon by her father to entertain "company" with her musical accomplishments of organ and voice, and of course such distinguished company as Mr. St. Croix Creighton would have to be favored. Through Nettie's lungs and fingers the entire family found their one and only artistic expression.

CHAPTER V

At breakfast next morning Meely warily watched the faces around the table for signs of newly awakened suspicions of herself. But she found nothing unusual in the demeanor of the family.

Nettie chattered excitedly about the elegance and "swellness" of Mr. Creighton's stylish clothes, his wonderful white hands, the way he said his words—"He says 'ho' for half! It sounds awful pretty and genteel that way! And, ach, the manners he's got! The way he held my chair for me to set! Say!"—it begged words.

"But I always say," her father spoke in, "that I don't think so much of manners—manners is so much more important."

"Gimme manners!" Nettie defiantly affirmed her choice.

"Morals and manners," said Meely, "can go hand in hand—they're mutually exclusive!"

Meely had often noticed that by use of a word of more than two syllables invariably awed the family in a prolonged silence.

She broke the present lull by broaching a subject to Mr. Schwenckton that was weighing on her mind. "He often do county superintendents visit a school, Mr. Schwenckton?"

"Ach, about once in so often."

"Yes, but how often?"

"Not so very often. Now and then."

"But I mean," Meely patiently explained, "how far apart are 'now' and 'then'?"

"Well, pretty far apart. You see he's got too many to visit to come often. And the schools is spread out so much area that it takes up time to go to and from."

In Splendor, Venice Surpassed All Cities

In Venice of the Sixteenth century luxury and splendor surpassed all bounds; never before at any time nor in any city were religious ceremonies, victories, the conclusion of peace, the visits of foreigners, or the marriages of illustrious persons, celebrated with greater pomp and magnificence. Those in the occupations of cloth makers and drapers reaped huge fortunes, for on nearly every gala occasion miles of rich new fabric were used and visitors to the city were rendered speechless by the matchless spectacle. There was a great rivalry among the nobles to see who could appear in the processions in the most expensive robe of gold and velvet, while the richness and the hangings from balcony and carpets spread for the feet of hour's hero strove to make themselves seen among the profusion of flow the countless flashing candles and play of color. When some magnificent occasion of this sort was no progress Venice was not permitted to be dull for a moment—there was always some carnival of merry-makers on streets and masquerades were so common they became a nuisance and with decrees forbidding them.—De-News.

TO SLEEP WE GO

The boy had been plowing when suddenly he came across a roll of mud with something alive in it. And then he found another.

"Whatever could they be?" he kept wondering. He knocked them this way and that, and rolled them along on the ground.

Something was alive inside, but not so very much alive, he decided. He looked some more, and rolled the balls of mud again. Out came the woodchucks. They were sound asleep. "Are you having pleasant dreams?" asked the boy.

But not a word or a sound came from the woodchucks. He moved them around, and they seemed quite too sleepy to care.

Just at that moment a rustling sound was heard through the plowed field.

"Dear me," said the boy, half aloud, "whatever can that be?" Then to his horror he saw three snakes going along the ground.

He looked at them from a little distance and saw that the shapes of their heads showed that they would not hurt anyone.

"Where are you going?" asked the boy.

The snakes did not know how to talk by language, but they hissed a little as if to say:

"We don't know what you are saying."

But to themselves they were thinking how fine it would be to go for a rest and to roll up in the mud before springtime and skin-changing time came.

The snakes went wiggling on to find their winter beds. The boy watched them go, while still before him were the woodchucks.

"Doesn't anything wake you up?" he asked, as he gave one a little shove.

"Please Don't Disturb Him."

A Little Bit Humorous

While out hunting Banty Johnson, son of Gap, and his dog, "Sounder," encountered a raccoon, which Banty shook out of a tree. The coon ran and Sounder staged a royal fight with him on the near-by railroad track. Sounder happened to be between the rails when the train came along. In telling about the fight Banty stated that that wasn't the worst of it.

"What in torment can be worse than losing Sounder?" demanded Gap.

"Why, that he still thinks the durn coon killed him."

Radio Transmission

Now that radio has entered the business of transmitting pictures and messages by the square inch instead of by dots and dashes, it is interesting to note that within its first year of operation the speed of transmission has been doubled. Whereas last year 40 minutes were required for a single photograph of standard size, today it can be done commercially in 20 minutes. Under laboratory conditions the same accomplishment has taken but two minutes.

The BABY

Why do so many, many babies of today escape all the little fretful spells and infantile ailments that used to worry mothers through the day, and keep them up half the night?

If you don't know the answer, you haven't discovered pure, harmless Castoria. It is sweet to the taste, and its gentle influence seems felt all through the tiny system. Not even a distasteful dose of castor oil does so much good.

Fletcher's Castoria is purely vegetable, so you may give it freely, at first sign of colic; or constipation; or diarrhea. Or those many times when you just don't know what is the matter. For real sickness, call the doctor, always. At other times, a few drops of Fletcher's Castoria.

The doctor often tells you to do just that; and always says Fletcher's. Other preparations may be just as pure, just as free from dangerous drugs, but why experiment? Besides, the book on care and feeding of babies that comes with Fletcher's Castoria is worth its weight in gold!

EVERYDAY GOOD THINGS

A nice slice of baked ham makes a most satisfactory dinner meat. Any that is left may be used to the last shred. Take a slice of ham cut two to three inches thick. Cover with water and cook until tender. Remove the ham to a baking pan, spread with brown sugar and a teaspoonful of mustard. Add the water a little at a time, lift from the pan and bake until well browned.

Raisin Pie.—Line a pie plate with pastry and fill with the following: Beat the yolks of two eggs, add one cupful of sugar, the grated rind of a lemon with the juice, a pinch of salt and a cupful of chopped, steamed, seedless raisins. Add a bit of water or sweet fruit juice if the mixture seems too dry. Beat the whites of the eggs until stiff, add three tablespoonfuls of sugar and cover the baked pie with the meringue. Dot with bits of marshmallows and bake until a light brown.

Beans With Bacon.—Take one can of tender string beans, drain and season well. Cut up two slices of bacon into bits and fry brown. Remove the bacon and fry one small onion in the fat; when the onion is light brown add the beans and when well heated add a bit of sharp vinegar to season. Serve hot with bacon and frankfur sausage.

Carrot Pie.—Take one cupful of stewed carrot, one cupful of hot milk, one cupful of sugar, one-half teaspoonful of ginger, one teaspoonful of cinnamon, one-half teaspoonful of allspice, one egg well beaten and a pinch of salt. Bake in one crust. Use egg white for a meringue if desired.

Apple John.—Slice into a deep dish four tart apples. Sprinkle with sugar and cinnamon, dot with bits of butter. Pour over them a dumpling mixture, or a rather thin baking powder biscuit dough. Bake in a hot oven until well browned. Serve with cream and sugar.

Quick Potato Rolls.—Boil potatoes and press through a ricer. To one cupful of potato and the water in which they were cooked add one-half cupful of scalded milk, three tablespoonfuls of shortening, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one tablespoonful of sugar; when lukewarm stir in one cake of compressed yeast mixed with one-fourth of a cupful of lukewarm milk; add two and one-half cupfuls of flour, mix with a knife, cutting and mixing well. Let stand to rise, cut down once and after rising again make into smooth balls. Cover with melted fat and let rise again until very light. Now shape for finger rolls and when light bake in a quick oven.

Russian Jelly.—Soak two tablespoonfuls of gelatin in one-third cupful of water. Boil one cupful of sugar with two cupfuls of water for ten minutes. Add the gelatin and one-half cupful each of grape and orange juice. Strain, add the beaten whites of two eggs, beat until cold. Serve with whipped cream, sweetened and flavored.

Tasty Foods.

A nice supper dish when one wishes something hot and satisfying is:

Golden Fleece.

—Cut fine and melt in a saucepan one-half pound of rich cheese; when soft add one cupful of cream and a dash of cayenne;

when thoroughly blended break in five eggs, cover for two minutes until the whites are set, remove the cover and beat the mass briskly with a spoon, adding salt to season. Serve on buttered toast or crackers.

Baked Smoked Fish.—Wrap a smoked whitefish in thick paper and place in the oven. Bake until the paper falls away, then serve on a hot platter.

English Rusk.—Set a sponge using a pint of milk, one-half a yeast cake well dissolved in one-half cupful of water and flour enough to make a thin batter. Beat well and let stand to rise in a warm place. When the sponge is light add two well beaten eggs, one scant cupful of sugar, one-half cupful of melted butter and not quite enough flour to make a mixture to knead. Let stand, and with the floured hands form into biscuits. Place in tins to rise. Bake in a moderate oven. Rub the tops of the biscuits when set to rise with melted lard or fat. After baking brush over with powdered sugar and water.

Date Dessert.—Beat two eggs well, add one-half cupful of sugar, four tablespoonfuls of flour with one teaspoonful of baking powder, one cupful each of dates and nuts finely cut. Bake in a well buttered pan and cut in finger sized pieces. Place in a glass jar and seal. Steam when wanted and serve with cream or an egg sauce. The pudding will keep for a long time.

AGAIN HE MAKES DREAM COME TRUE

Griff Had Sisler in Mind Since Day Ball Began Wrecking Browns.

The baseball meetings in New York furnished more important trades than they have produced in several years, and the Washington club was on the winning end of the biggest one, when it gathered in George Sisler, first baseman of the St. Louis Browns, for $15,000 cash. There had been indications that Clark Griffith would like to get Sisler ever since Phil Ball's announcement last summer that he would scrap his ball team. Griff has a way of making his dreams come true, and this was one of the times he did it.

It was hinted, though, that when Messrs. Griffith and Harris set sail for New York, they had switched to a plan for getting Neun or Blue from Detroit, in their quest for a first baseman. If so, their plans were spoiled before they could begin work on them, when Blue was traded to the Browns.

The idea got around and perhaps was meant for circulation at the meeting that Judge and Rice could be regarded as trading material. Joe is one of the best first basemen of all times, but is often out of the game because of injuries, while Sisler is always on the job.

Babe Ruth is quoted as considering Judge the better first baseman of the two and saying that in a pinch, either at bat or in the field, he would rather have Judge on his team than Sisler. It is expected that Sisler will take a new lease of life in Washington, as the Browns were not exactly a happy family last summer. He led the league in stolen bases last season and hit .327, and is expected to better his batting mark materially this year. George has a habit of leading the first basemen in assists, which is highly appreciated. Judge batted .311.

This year will be Sisler's fourteenth in the big time. He is thirty-four years old, weighs 170, is five feet ten inches tall, and in 1922 hit for .420, the American league record. Cobb made the same, but was beaten by a minor fraction by Sisler.

Big Baseball Problem for Hot-Stove League

Here's a baseball problem for the hot stove league:

Base runners are on second and third with nobody out. Batter hits long fly to left fielder. Runner on third base leaves the bag before the catch and crosses the plate. Runner on second waits until ball is caught and then, seeing throw is to the plate, dashes for third. Throw is wild and runner who had been on second continues home and crosses the plate without being tagged.

Team in the field then calls the attention of the umpire to the fact that runner had left third too soon. Umpire sustains contention. Now what is the status of the man who had been on second base? Would the run that he carried over the plate count?

Criqui's Comeback Ends as Most Like Efforts Do

An attempt by Eugene Criqui to come back in the ring failed dismally when the former featherweight champion of the world lost by a technical knockout in the sixth round to Tiger Humery, one of several claimants of the French championship.

Criqui's gameness was the only redeeming feature of the bout, in which he was outclassed from the start.

Criqui won the world championship in a bout with Johnny Kilbane in New York in June, 1923. He won immediate popularity with American fans by offering to fight as soon as possible the best man available in the class. A month later Johnny Dundee took the title away from him. Two and a half years ago Criqui, who had been badly wounded in the war long before his meteoric rise and fall in pugilism, announced his retirement from boxing.

Responsible Government Threatened Because of Apathy of Voters

By SARAH SCHUYLER BUTLER, New York Politician.

WHILE 51 per cent of those entitled to exercise the franchise in 1924 did so, the percentage would have been smaller had it not been for the work of the party machines. What is true of the general election is even more true of the primary. Theoretically the primary gives every enrolled voter in a political party an opportunity to participate in the selection of candidates. Actually it makes it possible for a small minority to select or defeat candidates, renders it difficult for a man of moderate means to run for political office, since he must now finance two campaigns instead of one, and in many cases consolidates the control of a party "machine." The reason is that the voters will not take part in the primaries.

Even in primary contests in which public opinion is aroused, the number of qualified voters who take part is rarely over a third, and in some contests the primary vote dwindles to pathetic proportions, the result sometimes being decided by less than one-twelfth of the registered voters.

This great power of minorities, and particularly of organized minorities, is having a serious effect upon the whole system of representative government in the United States. Representative government depends for its success upon the co-operation of the individual citizen. Government by minorities cannot be truly representative. It is for each of us, as American citizens, to choose whether in the generations that are to come our representative form of government shall continue and flourish, or whether so far as we are concerned "government of the people, by the people and for the people" shall perish from the earth.

Prosperity Dependent on Coöperation of "Big Business" and Labor

By WILLIAM GREEN, President A. F. of L.

Organized labor is convinced that the present living standards and national prosperity can be continued only through the maintenance of a high industrial productivity level and a high and still higher mass purchasing power.

The real problem of the new year will be that of financing commodity consumption. Not only must the consuming mass of people be encouraged to buy but they must be financed to the point where they can buy freely.

How will the owners of industrial enterprises meet this challenge? Will they accept organized labor's offer of co-operation? Will they assist in the giving of new force and meaning to collective bargaining, so that all concerned may think in terms of industrial peace and of the peaceful solution of industrial problems which affect the relationship of employers and employees?

Opposition to the American Federation of Labor and its constituent parts through the organization of company unions, the use of court injunctions, and the forced denial of the exercise of the right to employees to join the labor union of their choice tends to fan the flame of industrial hate. Will those employers who have been pursuing such an opposition policy during the past continue to do so in the future?

Parents Leaving Too Much to Teachers and Employers in Education of Youth

By CAMERON BECK, New York Stock Exchange.

Too many parents are inclined to "pass the buck" to teachers and employers in bringing up their children. Employers are more concerned with the moral welfare of the young people on their pay rolls, than many of the parents of modern youngsters.

As the head of the personal department of the New York stock exchange I personally interviewed more than 9,000 young people yearly and out of the group employed, boys and girls of high-school age, no serious boy trouble has presented itself, although the last year has been the most trying period in youth this country has ever had.

We adopted the policy that we would not allow a boy to continue with us in voluntary ignorance. Today 71 per cent of the 275 boys attending evening schools are now enrolled in evening schools of college or university rank, and I believe that what has been done on the stock exchange can be done in every industry in this country. The result is that within six months we do not have to go out of the ranks to find anyone ready for the position open above.

Imbeciles Without Hope of Recovery Should Be Chloroformed in Childhood

By CLARENCE DARROW, Noted Criminal Lawyer.

After reaching the age of ten, imbeciles for whom there is no hope of recovery should have their lives snuffed out.

Of course the consent of the parents should be obtained. With the consent of the parents, a child who has no hopes for the future beside that of life in an asylum would be mercifully put away. The sight of a child with the blank expression of a hopeless imbecile not only inspires pity, but instills a feeling of disgust and horror.

Our institutions for the feeble-minded are growing beyond control. They are sadly packed, and in a great many cases overflowing. Such a law would relieve the tragic situation.

Children showing criminal tendencies should not be removed. Criminal tendencies can be cured by proper treatment. If they took to chloroforming all those with such tendencies they might as well chloroform us all.

Civilization of the United States in Advance of That of Europe

By LUCIEN ROMER, Leading French Editor.

Which continent will be the master of the future: Europe or America? Two types of civilization are facing each other. The European is based upon personal invention and individual well-being, the American on group enterprise and social well-being; the American has the better chance of surviving.

This is true largely because economic masses in the United States have a type of organization superior to those of Europe and receive an education inspired by the idea of service as well as that of profit.

In Europe the masses have been until the present at least artificially divided, the workers on one side, the capitalists and directors on the other, while in America the mass is always united, workers and capitalists co-operating instead of squabbling among themselves.

No Spanish Colors for Haitian General

During the reign of the Emperor Souleouque in Haiti one of his generals wrote to an eminent oculist in Paris for a glass eye. The oculist flattered himself that a successful eye would secure for him one of the Haitian crosses; so he devoted himself to the production of a work of art.

Six months elapsed. Then a small box reached him from Haiti. A cross glistened in his imagination, but, to his horror, within the folds of cotton was his work of art. A letter accompanied the box.

"Sir," it ran, "the eye you forwarded to me is of a tint that resembles that of the Spanish flag, and I am too patriotic to wear any but the colors of my country."

The oculist proceeded at once to the admiralty, there ascertained the colors of the Haitian flag, and at once manufactured a scarlet and green eye, which he forwarded at the earliest opportunity.

London to Be Floodproof

London's great "anti-flood" scheme is nearing completion after nearly seven years' work. Parts of it have been finished, and are credited with having saved the city from a possible deluge during the big storms of last summer. The scheme includes storm relief sewers, with pumping stations fitted with powerful machinery at danger points. When it is completed, experts say, London will be practically floodproof.

Bird Finally Got Home
King Avalon, a homing pigeon, owned by Frank Maderos of Martinez, Calif., was loosed in Nevada for a race to Martinez, four years ago. After weeks had passed and the bird had not returned Maderos gave the bird up as lost, probably the prey of a hawk or hunter. But the bird has returned, very tired and apparently from a long flight, and has refused to leave its loft.

It is hard to keep local color out of the news. Recently a leading Italian newspaper referred to the American Farm Bureau Federation as the "American Peasants' Union."

It took a jury at Morrison, Illinois, twelve hours to acquit a man who drove over a chicken. The jurymen must have been waiting for tamperers.

A recent poet sings of the "rhomboid trombonal omnivorous Me." His omnivorousness has evidently led him to eat something that doesn't agree with him.

Dr. Agnes Rogers of Bryn Mawr declares that "algebra is more amazing than radio." And her students may add, more fearsome.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., says that "law, good or bad should be observed." And "should" is the correct word.

SPLINTERS

From the H. H. Smith Lumber Yard

VOLUME I FRIDAY, JANUARY 27, 1928 NUMBER 26

Published in the interests of the People of Daly City and vicinity by H. H. Smith and Employees.

A bargain sale has parted many a wife and her husband's money.

The young bride was asked what she thought of married life.

"Oh, there's not much difference," she replied. "I used to wait up half the night for George to go, and now I wait up half the night for him to come home."

Keep your temper—it's yours.

"Where do you bathe?"

"In the spring?"

"I didn't ask you when; I asked you where."

"ABERDEEN," the Coal that satisfies.

Beware of what is pleasant to behold: Polished brass is more attractive than rough gold.

Auto salesman: "Ever drive a car?"

Prospect: "No, but my neighbor and his wife frequently take us riding and I've often listened to her drive."

When in need of Coal, think of H. H.

A timekeeper of a negro extra gang asked a new hand his name.

"George Washington, suh," replied the new man.

"You're not the man who cut down the cherry tree, are you?" joked the timekeeper.

"No, suh. This is the first work I've done in over a year."

Several years ago we met a bootlegging policeman. Today he is a copper still.

"Did you hear the joke about that movie actress?"

"No, what was it?"

"Her secretary didn't keep the records straight, and now she finds she's had two more divorces than she's had weddings."

Did you ever hear about the thrifty soul—evidently a Scotchman—who got married in the back yard so that the chickens could eat the rice?

He called his last girl "Portland," because while she wasn't a smart girl, cement well.
